USLAW NETWORK TO HOST BOOT CAMP FOR LLOYD’S UNDERWRITERS AND BUSINESS LEADERS

CORAL SPRINGS, Florida (January 26, 2011) – On February 9, 2011, USLAW NETWORK will host an executive level educational “Boot Camp” exclusively for Lloyd’s of London Underwriters and Lloyd’s Business Leaders to be held at Lloyd’ Headquarters in London.

This unique first time event will include 35 USLAW Member Attorneys representing 24 Member Firms and 35 States presenting on specific topics and product lines of interest to Lloyd’s market. Presenters will appear both in person in London and via Video Conference.

The day’s events will be opened by Tom Bolt, Director, Performance Management, Lloyd’s.

USLAW will demonstrate to Lloyd’s leaders the value of anticipating and incorporating jurisdictional insight into the front end of the underwriting process and to continue to leverage that advantage into the risk management, prevention, mitigation, response, investigation and claims process in order to achieve better results over the life of the risk.

The event is specifically designed for executives and key underwriting professionals who can recognize the commercial value of this information and translate this into their underwriting decisions, positively influence the underwriting process and resulting combined loss ratio. It is designed to help underwriters understand the reach of coverage they have granted and true degree of risk in their underwriting choices. In the legal world, jurisdictional knowledge and experience trump everything else. This is defined by USLAW as “The Homefield Advantage.”

“Over the past six month, USLAW and Lloyd’s have worked closely to identify specific topics of interest that are seen as relevant and influential by the Lloyd’s market as they underwrite forward – both in terms of commercial opportunity and threat,” stated John E. Hall, Jr., USLAW NETWORK Chair. “The upcoming boot camp will demonstrate that while risk differs between locations, underwriters jurisdictional expertise shouldn’t.”
